Christmas Entertainments.

Christmas was quite generally observed by the Sunday schools both in town and country. Below is a brief mention of the various Christmas entertainments:

At the M. E. church there was the usual literary and musical program, which was followed by a candy treat to the little children.

At the Baptist church a literary and musical program by the children was a special feature of the evening's entertainment. This was followed by a distribution of presents.

At the Cumberland Presbyterian church there was a program of prayer, Scripture readings and songs, followed by a general distribution of presents, and a collection for the benefit of the poor.

The Sunday school festival at the Christian church was of the usual interest. A short literary and musical program was presented, followed by the distribution of toothsome eatables. The enrollment of pupils approximates 200.

The Sunday school of the M. E. Church, South, departed from the usual plan of having an entertainment at the church, and enjoyed an old fashioned candy pulling at the parsonage. The young people gathered about 7 o'clock, and both little folks and big delighted themselves with games until the candy was ready to pull. A merry evening was had, and all seemed to go away as well pleased as if they had had their Santa Claus at the church.

The Presbyterian church was not elaborately, but very neatly and tastefully, decorated with pictures, mottoes and evergreens. On the rostrum was a large chimney and old-fashioned fire-place, and four limp stockings of various sizes hung from the mantle. Immediately after the opening, devotional exercises, the incandescent lights went out; and when in a moment they were turned on again, there sat Santa Claus on the rostrum, in his great fur coat and gloves and with his long white hair and beard. While Santa Claus was talking, expressing his desire to know who the Christ might be, of whom he had evidently recently heard, old father Time appeared with his scythe upon his shoulder, and called upon some of his hours to come and assist him in giving Santa the desired information. One by one the hours in the persons of girls and boys of the Sunday School, came upon the rostrum representing by costume and recitation different scenes in the life of Jesus from his birth throughout his life. The exercises were interspersed with appropriate songs. The services were pronounced by everybody very beautiful and impressive. After the disappearance of Santa, Father Time and the Hours, two girls and two boys in night caps and gowns, sang very entertainingly and amusingly: "We are all waiting for Santa Claus to come." No sooner had they finished singing than Santa came crawling out of the fire-place and began taking down the chimney and giving to each boy and girl there a brick, which proved in every case to be a box filled with candy. Apples and oranges also were distributed, and the little people, and the big people too, went home feeling that they had enjoyed a very delightful evening.

The Christmas entertainment at the M. E. church-Brashear, Mo., was a grand success. Everybody was well pleased. The children all rendered their parts well, which went to show that they had been carefully trained; great credit being due their trainer, Miss Stella St. Clair, Effie Sands and Cora Wardner rendered their recitations well.

The By-Lo-Land song, by Mary Dugham, Effie Sands and Clara Holloway, seemed to please everybody.

Dialogue-"Our Offerings," by seven little girls, was well done.

Mrs. Hanks then rendered a very beautiful poem; her voice was clear and musical.

The song "Far Away," by Bertha Conkle, Stella St. Clair, Ella and Jessie Gordon, was beautiful, and well sung.

The select reading by Miss St. Clair, entitled Annie and Willie's Prayer, was read in a clear, distinct tone showing that the reader had full control of her voice.

The church was decorated with evergreen and roses. Over the pulpit was, "Merry Christmas to all, 1891."

The Christmas tree had many beautiful presents on it. The children enjoyed the evening entertainment, and also a generous treat of candy, oranges and popcorn. They left the church with happy hearts, only wishing Christmas came oftener.

Greentop, Millard, Sublette, Bryant, Bethel, Mulberry, Wilson and Green Grove each had trees, with literary and musical programs.

Adams called at the house, having a business appointment with Mr. Dawdy. When he entered the room he found him in bed with the bed clothing drawn up snugly under his chin. He spoke to him, but receiving no answer, laid his hand on his forehead to arouse him, and discovered that he was dead. His death was the result of heart disease with which he had been troubled for some time. The funeral took place from the Christian church, in LaPlata, Wednesday afternoon. The funeral discourse was preached by Eld. J. W. Davis, after which the body was taken in charge by Kirksville Lodge 105, A. F. & A. M. and, escorted by Ely Commandery, Knights Templar, conveyed to the LaPlata cemetery, and laid to rest until the resurrection morn.
